At the fortieth session of the Commission/Conference of African Ministers of Finance, Planning and Economic Development, held in Addis Ababa from 2 to 3 April 2007, the Economic Commission for Africa (ECA) approved the following draft resolution, without a vote, for adoption by the Council. Following ECA's approval, the delegation of Morocco rejected the draft resolution based on reservations on subparagraph (a).

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling Economic Commission for Africa resolution 844 (XXXIX) of 16 May 2006 on repositioning the Economic Commission for Africa to better respond to Africa's priorities, in which it endorsed the strategic direction, the guiding principles and proposals for repositioning the Economic Commission for Africa and requested the Executive Secretary to take the necessary measures to implement these proposals and reflect them in the Commission biennial programme plan for the period 2008-2009, and realign the intergovernmental, programme and organizational structures of the Economic Commission for Africa in order to enhance the secretariat's management and business processes for greater results,

Taking into account decision AU/Dec.14 (VII) adopted by the seventh ordinary session of the Assembly of the African Union on 2 July 2006, on strengthening the African Union Commission, the Economic Commission for Africa and the African Development Bank partnership, in which it welcomed the commitment of the Executive Secretary of the Economic Commission for Africa to strengthening and repositioning the Economic Commission for Africa to address Africa's development challenges, and reaffirmed the role of the Economic Commission for Africa as a key and necessary United Nations institution in Africa to assist and facilitate the work of the African Union and the regional economic communities in defining, articulating, advocating common positions on development policies and issues and goals, and promoting and supporting economic and social development in Africa,

Recalling decision AU/Dec.140 (VIII) adopted by the eighth ordinary session of the Assembly of the African Union on 30 January 2007, on enhancing United Nations-African Union cooperation by which the African Union Heads of State and Government endorsed the signing by the United Nations and the African Union of the Declaration entitled "Enhancing United Nations-African Union cooperation: framework for the 10-year capacity-building programme for the African Union",

2. At its sixty-second session, held in Geneva from 25 to 27 April 2007, the Economic Commission for Europe (ECE) adopted a Declaration for its sixtieth anniversary, which is hereunder brought to the attention of the Council.

Declaration for the sixtieth anniversary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe

3. The Declaration acknowledged achievements by the Economic Commission for Europe over the past 60 years in fostering cooperation and integration, and reaffirmed the commitment of ECE member States to support and strengthen the effective implementation of the mandate of the organization and to ensure its continued substantive relevance, greater visibility and improved transparency.

4. The Declaration affirmed that ECE can, through the further exercise of its role as a multilateral platform, substantially contribute to addressing the challenges of the ECE region by, as an integral part of the United Nations, continuing to bring the development and environmental goals agreed by the international community down to the regional level, and supporting their implementation with the involvement of relevant actors; contributing to increasing coherence of the development work of the United Nations at the regional level, in close cooperation with other entities of the United Nations family; ensuring that the work of ECE is rooted in its sectoral committees; continuing to provide a forum for open dialogue among member States and other stakeholders within the areas of its competence; assisting countries to implement its intergovernmental outcomes through sectoral activities and technical cooperation; supporting regional and subregional integration processes in their endeavours; and further implementing the United Nations global mandate on gender equality by promoting the economics of gender as a factor of sustained growth.

5. In conclusion, the Declaration underlined that ECE is well placed within pan-European and transatlantic architecture to continue to address transboundary issues, promote prosperity and contribute to building a common regional economic space, and committed the renewed support of ECE member States to a reinvigorated organization as a major forum to meet effectively the changing needs of its member States.

B. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific

6. At its sixty-third session, held in Almaty, Kazakhstan from 17 to 23 May 2007, the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) adopted a declaration for its sixtieth anniversary, as well as several other resolutions and decisions, which are hereunder brought to the attention of the Council.

Almaty Declaration: Commemorating the sixtieth anniversary of the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific

7. The Commission recognized the historic significance of the session, held for the first time in Central Asia in the year that marks the sixtieth anniversary of its founding, and celebrated a period spanning six decades in which membership has grown from 10 in 1947 to 62 today, encompassing a region that is home to two thirds of humankind and is characterized by a rich diversity of cultures and economic and social systems. The Commission expressed its deep appreciation to the Government and people of the Republic of Kazakhstan for hosting the session and commended Kim Hak-Su, Executive Secretary of ESCAP, for his leadership in revitalizing the Commission.

8. The Commission also recalled Economic and Social Council resolution 1998/46 of 31 July 1998 on further measures for the restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields, which recognizes the regional commissions as regional outposts of the United Nations, fulfilling norm-setting, dissemination and analytical functions, as well as providing an important forum for articulating regional perspectives on global issues and for building consensus within their respective regions. In recalling the United Nations Millennium Declaration¹ and the 2005 World Summit Outcome,² the Commission reaffirmed its commitment to enhancing the authority and efficiency of the United Nations, as well as its capacity to address effectively the full range of challenges faced in the present era of rapid socio-economic development. The Commission also recalled the Shanghai Declaration,³ a landmark resolution adopted at the birthplace of the Commission in Shanghai, China, which outlines the overall vision for the Commission in reducing poverty, managing globalization and addressing emerging social issues.

9. In reaffirming the vital role of the Commission in fostering regional and subregional cooperation and in assisting members and associate members in their efforts to achieve the Millennium Development Goals, the Commission committed itself to supporting its mandated functions as the main general economic and social development centre within the United Nations system for the region, and was convinced that it was well placed to expand the scope of regional cooperation through the strengthening of linkages with subregional organizations, including the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, the Economic Cooperation Organization, the Eurasian Economic Community, the Pacific Islands Forum, the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation and the Shanghai Cooperation Organization. In a region that hosts the world's most dynamic economies, the Commission noted with concern the widening disparities between and within countries, and therefore resolved to strengthen South-South cooperation and to accelerate the integration of Central Asia into the regional economies of Asia and the Pacific through, among other things, the strengthening of the United Nations Special Programme for the Economies of Central Asia.

10. The Commission expressed its determination to build an Asia-Pacific century as an epoch during which poverty is eliminated and equal opportunities become available for every woman and man to live healthy, peaceful and productive lives, and it resolved to support the efforts of ESCAP in renewing itself towards fulfilling the vision of an Asia-Pacific century. The Commission requested the Executive Secretary to reinvigorate the role of the Commission as a regional development centre, in close collaboration with United Nations country teams, and to strengthen the leadership of the Commission in promoting South-South cooperation. The Commission further requested the Executive Secretary to enhance the visibility of the Commission and increase understanding of its role in policy advocacy and consensus-building, as the body uniquely representative of the Asia and Pacific region, and pledged strong and continuing support to the leadership role of ESCAP in catalysing regional cooperation, in fostering an Asia-Pacific century and in creating a shared future based upon our common humanity.

C. Economic Commission for Africa

28. At the fortieth session of the Commission/Conference of African Ministers of Finance, Planning and Economic Development, the Commission approved six resolutions and a ministerial statement, which are hereunder brought to the attention of the Council.

Summary of the ministerial statement, 3 April 2007, Addis Ababa

29. The African Ministers of Finance, Planning and Economic Development reaffirmed commitment to the Millennium Development Goals, and also reaffirmed the importance of the New Partnership for Africa’s Development (NEPAD)¹² as the framework for Africa’s development; supported the decision made by the summit of the NEPAD Heads of State and Government Implementation Committee in Algiers, in March 2007, to establish a NEPAD planning and coordinating authority; and further supported its subsequent integration into the African Union structure, and commended the role of ECA in coordinating the efforts of United Nations agencies in support of the implementation of NEPAD and the revitalization of the cluster system. The Ministers also welcomed ECA support to African countries to track the progress in implementing the commitments emanating from regional and global conferences and summits, including the World Summit on Sustainable Development, the World Summit on the Information Society and the Brussels Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the Decade 2001-2010.⁸

30. The main elements of the ministerial statement, as set forth in its call for action to scale up for success, are summarized below.

A call for action to scale up for success

31. The need to act now: With time running out to achieve the Millennium Development Goals by 2015, the Ministers resolved to shift the emphasis from discussing principles to working out the practicalities for enhanced action; the year 2007 must be the year of redoubled effort at national, regional and global levels.

¹² See A/57/304, annex.

32. Ownership and self-belief: Comprehensive national development strategies must be country owned with a strong sense of belief that the task can be achieved, with sufficient policy space to design strategies adapted to the specific needs of our countries with a view to ending aid dependency over time.

33. Millennium Development Goal-based comprehensive national development strategies: By the end of 2007, comprehensive national development strategies and medium-term expenditure frameworks must be aligned with the Millennium Development Goals, with practical strategies for implementing the quick-impact initiatives as agreed at the 2005 World Summit and reaffirmed at the 2006 Conference on Financing for Development held in Nigeria.

34. Monitoring and evaluation: By the end of 2008, a mechanism should be put in place in our member States for monitoring, tracking, and evaluating progress towards the Millennium Development Goals, and, in this regard, the Ministers commended ECA on having set up the Learning Group on poverty reduction strategies and the Millennium Development Goals.

35. Domestic resource mobilization: The Ministers resolved to increase domestic spending on the Millennium Development Goals, to ensure that resources from debt relief and revenues from natural resources and other sources are channelled towards meeting the Goals; promote microfinancing; and improve the business and investment environment to attract increasing flows of foreign direct investment.

36. Investment in gender equality: Recognizing that improving the position and condition of women is central to achieving the Millennium Development Goals, the Ministers resolved to increase investments in gender equality and women's empowerment that improve the status of women, including the provision of water, energy, education and health.

37. Generating employment: Recognizing the central role of employment in the fight against poverty and the attainment of the Millennium Development Goals, the Ministers pledged to integrate employment-creating policies in national development programmes and to increase investments towards employment creation.

38. Revitalizing African agriculture: The Ministers resolved to do their utmost to launch the African green revolution by the end of 2008, in order to raise agricultural productivity by ensuring access for smallholder farmers to fertilizer and improved seeds and strengthening agricultural extension services; and they reiterated their commitment to the implementation of the NEPAD Comprehensive Africa Agriculture Development Programme and to allocating 10 per cent of budgets to agriculture, as per the African Union Maputo Decision of 2003.

39. Climate change and development: ECA, in collaboration with the African Union Commission, the African Development Bank and other international institutions, should develop and implement the Climate Information for Development in Africa (ClimDev-Africa) Programme, and Governments should integrate climate adaptation and mitigation measures into their national development strategies.

40. Statistics and statistical capacity: The Ministers called on ECA, the African Union Commission and the African Development Bank to continue their coordination and leadership role in statistical development in Africa, and to further strengthen the collaboration with regional bodies and subregional organizations, including the regional economic communities; resolved to lend full support to the Africa Symposia on Statistical Development; and recommended that the International Comparison Programme (ICP) Africa be continued in order to facilitate intra-country and international comparisons.

41. Regional integration: Governments and development partners should finance the implementation of the NEPAD infrastructure programme, and the African Union Commission should collaborate with civil society organizations to engage the support of the African people.

42. Financing for development: ECA, in collaboration with the African Union Commission, should organize an assessment of the status of implementation of the Monterrey Consensus¹³ in Africa, and propose practical ways in which all African countries can effectively access financing for development in preparation for the global midterm review of the Monterrey Consensus of the International Conference on Financing for Development, to be held in Qatar in early 2008. South-South cooperation should also be strengthened as a complementary source of development finance.

43. Aid for Trade: ECA should work with the African Union Commission and the African Development Bank to support African Governments in implementing the Aid for Trade initiative, including defining new mechanisms through national and regional Aid for Trade programmes in addressing Africa's trade-related challenges.

44. Economic Partnership Agreements: Acknowledging the challenges that the economic partnership agreements between the European Union and African countries and the related trade liberalization could present to our member States, the Ministers requested the European Union to make available additional resources to meet the adjustment and other associated costs and urged that a new economic partnerships agreements framework be adopted before the expiration of the current one in December 2007.

45. Implementation of commitments of official development assistance (ODA): The Ministers called on the G-8 leaders, at their 2007 summit in Heiligendamm, Germany, to make explicit a clear action plan for the implementation of their commitment made at the Gleneagles summit to double aid to Africa in order to ensure effective and predictable delivery of aid. While acknowledging the progress made by the European Union towards meeting their commitments in raising ODA to Africa, the Ministers further called on the European Union and other development partners to implement the commitment of the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness.

46. Enhanced support from international organizations: The Ministers called on the United Nations and international financial institutions to support opportunities for scaling up investments to meet the Millennium Development Goals and the mobilization of necessary domestic and external resources.

Positioning ECA to effectively meet Africa's challenges

47. The Ministers recognized the key role of ECA in promoting economic and social development in Africa, and noted with satisfaction the strengthened collaboration among ECA, the African Union Commission and the African Development Bank. They took note of the ECA Business Plan 2007-2009, which articulates the strategic direction of the Commission and lays out a bold and enhanced programme in support to member States; commended the Executive Secretary on his leadership; and urged member States and development partners to support the Plan with adequate resources.

Resolution 847 (XL)Aid for Trade

48. The Economic Commission for Africa requested development partners to expedite the remaining work on the Aid for Trade initiative so that it can start benefiting the African countries, and further urged donor agencies and beneficiaries to enhance the effectiveness of Aid for Trade programmes and ensure that they are consistent with and supportive of regional and subregional integration initiatives. The Commission encouraged the involvement of the African private sector as one of the implementation vehicles for the Aid for Trade initiative at national and regional levels, and requested the ECA secretariat, in close collaboration with the African Union, the African Development Bank and other international trade institutions, to assist member States and regional economic communities in the operationalization and implementation of the initiative. The Commission reaffirmed its support to the role that the ECA secretariat is playing in the implementation of the initiative, especially in assisting African countries to define their national and regional Aid for Trade programmes, and also in the monitoring and evaluation of its effectiveness in addressing Africa's trade challenges. It also called on development partners to provide, in a predictable and sustained manner, the additional resources required by African countries to build their competitiveness and address supply-side and infrastructure constraints. The Commission also undertook to actively participate in defining priorities and programmes of the Aid for Trade initiative as well as in its implementation in close collaboration with ministries of trade.

Resolution 848 (XL)Financing for development

49. The Economic Commission for Africa encouraged African countries to increase the mobilization of domestic resources through the design and adoption of appropriate economic policies to boost domestic savings, increase domestic tax revenue, boost remittances and stem capital flight. The Commission invited African countries to improve the investment climate and to take appropriate measures to ensure that the scaling up of ODA does not have any adverse effects on national economies.
